Policy Work

Double Parking Hearing

Double parking causes delays on our transit lines, bike lane obstructions, and unnecessary traffic jams on our already crowded streets. A single car or truck double-parked can disrupt an entire transit line or create a multi-block traffic jam. Yet, outside of downtown, we see little double parking enforcement. I've called a hearing in which the Municipal Transportation Agency will report on city policy on double parking, detail how double parking impacts traffic, including Muni and bikes, explain current enforcement policies, and report on citation statistics for double parking.

Safeway Recycling Center at Market and Buchanan to Close Down

Since I took office, I've expressed concern about the recycling center at Market and Buchanan. The recycling center causes significant problems for the surrounding neighborhood, and I've encouraged Safeway to consider other options. In August, Safeway terminated the recycling center's lease, and the center is slated to close in October. I fully support Safeway's decision, since San Francisco should be moving toward a more dispersed form of recycling redemption rather than rely on a few large centers with unfair impacts on just a few neighborhoods. In that spirit, I'm working with the Department of the Environment and the Mayor's Office to create a more dispersed model, with reverse vending machines and the like spread throughout the city.

Streetlight Hearing

Streetlights are an important part of our streetscape, brightening our nightlife and keeping our streets safe. Yet, too often our streetlights burn out and don't get fixed in a timely manner. Last year I held a major hearing on our broken streetlight system in response to excessive outages and overall poor conditions. At that hearing, we learned that there were, on average, 16 reported streetlight outages per day (6,000 in 2011) and that it took several weeks or even a month to get streetlights fixed. At that hearing, PG&E - which powers 40% of our city's streetlights - committed to significantly increase investment in streetlights and reduce repair times. Next month, we will have a follow-up hearing to receive an update on these statistics and the progress PG&E and the Public Utilities Commission have made in improving their response times. Click here to learn more.

Park Hours Legislation

I'm currently sponsoring legislation to establish, for the first time, clear and consistent park closing hours - midnight to 5 a.m. - in San Francisco parks. San Francisco is the only major city in the United States without statutory closing hours. The legislation would replace a hodge-podge of unenforceable, inconsistent, and confusing signs stating closing hours in some parks but not others. Our current system is bad policy and creates confusion for residents, police, and the park patrol. Vandalism and illegal dumping in our parks - which overwhelmingly occur in the middle of the night - cost the City nearly $1 million a year in staff costs and maintenance expenses. You can read an editorial by the San Francisco Examiner supporting the legislation here.

My Transportation Work

My Work to Improve Muni

Improving our beleaguered Muni - which I ride every day and share the riding public's frustrations - continues to be a primary focus for me. I recently wrote an op-ed in the San Francisco Chronicle on our need to prioritize funding for Muni infrastructure and state-of-good-repair, in order to accommodate not only today's Muni riders but future riders as well. Our population is growing, and if we don't make a dramatic shift in how we fund our transit system, we will force more people into their cars and clog up our streets for decades to come. As a member of Mayor Lee's Transportation Task Force, I'm working with others to formulate smart and focused funding proposals that will keep the system in good shape and make it more reliable. I look forward to continuing this important work.

Muni to Purchase Next Generation of Light Rail Vehicles: Gotta Get It Right

Muni's light rail vehicles (LRVs) are very problematic. They have design problems - fragile doors, steps, and propulsion systems - and their lack of reliability and frequent breakdowns are a significant factor in Muni's lack of reliability. Muni has a great opportunity to address this problem as it embarks on its procurement process for the next generation of LRVs. Muni will be purchasing more than 200 new LRVs and must get it right as it moves through the bidding process. We can't afford to have another generation of unreliable vehicles. Yesterday, I held a hearing on this important subject, as covered here.

Bike Share Rollout and Need to Expand Citywide

I'm excited that Bay Area Bike Share has officially launched a pilot bike share program in San Francisco, another key step toward making San Francisco a true transit-first city. Bike share programs all over the world have been shown to reduce traffic, improve public transit, and stimulate the local economy. I'm eager for this pilot to be a launching pad to a citywide program. These 350 (soon to be 500) bikes, available at 35 stations situated in the downtown core, are an exciting glimpse into the future, but we need to continue to push forward toward a citywide program. To ensure this happens, I've called for a hearing where MTA will report on planned efforts and strategies to expand the bike share program throughout the city.

Castro Public Safety Meeting

In late July, I hosted a public safety meeting in the Castro to address the continuing problem of robberies and assaults in the neighborhood. The police and District Attorney joined me and neighborhood groups in hearing from frustrated neighbors who want better protection and safer streets. As both a representative and resident of the Castro, these crimes concern me greatly, and I will continue to work with the police - in whom I have great confidence - to improve our neighborhood's safety. Our police department is down 300 officers from full staffing, due to years of not funding police academy classes. After I took office, I and others fought to start having police academy classes again, and we have stopped the department's shrinkage and will see it begin to grow back to full staffing over the next few years. Public safety is a team effort, and the community needs to continue to work very closely with the police to improve safety in the neighborhood.

Transit Effectiveness Project (TEP) Update

The existing transit system for the City of San Francisco was designed over 30 years ago, and has not had a major overhaul since that time. The Transit Effectiveness Project (TEP) proposes to update the system to better meet today's travel patterns. The project proposes a number of changes to the transportation network that will reduce the number of crowded Muni buses, shorten bus travel time, and improve transit reliability. Combined, the proposals are expected to reduce travel times on rapid corridors by up to 20 percent, and enhance safety for all modes of travel. The public can provide comments on the Draft Environment Impact Report, which was published in July by going to the City Planning Department's web site. Stay up to date on the latest TEP news and find out more about it at www.sftep.com.

Fire Code and Pedestrian Safety

In June, the Board unanimously passed my package of pedestrian safety legislation that included an amendment to the fire code designed to improve street and sidewalk safety improvements. My legislation allows bulbouts and sidewalk extensions, which make it safer to cross streets while ensuring good fire truck access. I'm continuing to fight to make sure this fire code amendment remains operative, in order to address the epidemic of pedestrian injuries in San Francisco.

City College Accreditation

I'm a passionate supporter of City College, which is a crucial educational institution for so many San Franciscans, and I disagree with the decision to revoke its accreditation. City College needs reform, but threatening to close it down is not the answer. I recently wrote a letter to the editor to the Chronicle supporting City Attorney Dennis Herrera's lawsuit challenging the deaccreditation.

Looking at City Government's Business Dealings with Russia

Russia's passage of extremist, anti-LGBT legislation has caused a strong reaction in our local LGBT community and around the world. This repulsive legislation reminds me of anti-Jewish measures passed by Germany in the 1930s. In light of this awful situation, I formally inquired about the extent to which the City and County of San Francisco invests funds in Russia or purchases goods or services from the country. Russia's criminalization of LGBT people, consistent with its long history of persecuting Jews and other minorities, is unacceptable and must be condemned in the strongest terms.

Animal Care and Control Hearing

San Franciscans care deeply about humane care for animals. Our Animal Care & Control department provides a safety net for dogs, cats, and many other animals, and it enforces animal welfare laws and addresses vicious animals. Due to long-term structural underfunding and a significant increase in shelter population and other demands on the agency's services, the agency has been unable to fully perform its significant responsibilities. To address this, I've called for a hearing to assess AC&C's operational and budgetary needs. We need to ensure that this department has the necessary resources to take care of animals in our shelters and enforce animal welfare rules in our neighborhoods.

GGNRA New Draft Proposal

The new draft proposal restricting dog access in the Golden Gate National Recreation Area (Crissy Field, Ocean Beach, Fort Funston, etc.) has been released. Please be engaged in this process, as the result could have dramatic impacts on recreational access on this federal land, as well as impacts on our city parks if overly restrictive dog rules simply push more dogs into our already-taxed neighborhood parks. The draft plan/SEIS is available for review and comment until December 4th. Comments may be submitted in three ways:

Mourning Jose Sarria

The LGBT Community, the city and the country lost a true leader and hero last month when Jose Sarria passed away at the age of 90. Jose, who was the founder of the Imperial Court and the first openly LGBT person in the nation to run for office when he ran for San Francisco Supervisor in 1961, inspired all of us with his leadership and courage. At a Board of Supervisors meeting earlier this month, the Board unanimously passed my resolution declaring Friday September 6, 2013, a day of remembrance honoring Jose Sarria's life. He will be greatly missed by all.

Castro Street Sidewalk Widening Project Approved and Soon Underway!

The Castro Streetscape Project passed an important step in August when the MTA Board of Directors officially approved the project. I'm proud to have championed and obtained the funding for this transformational change to the neighborhood - one that will benefit residents, visitors, and merchants alike. Construction is set to begin in January and to be complete before the Castro Fair in October 2014. The project will widen sidewalks, make improvements to Jane Warner Plaza, install a bulbout in front of the former Harvey Milk camera shop, and generally beautify the street. I've worked closely with the neighborhood and city departments from the beginning and will stay engaged through completion of the project.

The Castro Theatre Organ Project

The privately owned Castro Wurlitzer organ is in danger of being removed from the theatre, and I'm working with supporters of the organ to keep it at the theater and to get it refurbished and upgraded. The "Castro Organ Devotees Association"—(SFCODA)—is a nonprofit organization with the dual goal of saving the iconic Castro Wurlitzer and expanding it into a comprehensive musical instrument of international prominence. Utilizing digital technology, a magnificent theatre/concert organ is being designed —incorporating the existing Wurlitzer pipes—that will preserve the instrument's current sound while allowing greatly expanded musical possibilities. SFCODA is seeking help in moving this project forward. More information is available and donations may be made at www.SFCODA.org.

Glen Park Canyon Update

The Glen Canyon improvements have been moving forward, but there has been a small complication due to unanticipated issues with the sewer and water lines. Currently, Rec and Park is determining if they need to delay the opening of the Rec Center, which they had hoped to have open before the overall project's expected November 4th opening date. Also, due to additional work being done, the entire project may be delayed, however that has not been determined yet. Work concerning erosion control and stabilization will be done north of the fenced off area during the next few weeks. As a part of this work, there will be removal and pruning of select trees in that area. These trees were included in the overall tree removal and replanting plans posted on the webpage and in public presentations last fall and this spring. Please use this link to find out more info on the project if you have additional questions! If you have further questions, please contact Karen.Mauney-Brodek@sfgov.org or call me at 415-575-5601

Parks Update: Form a Neighborhood Park Group

District 8 has 40 parks, more than any other district in San Francisco. Some parks have very strong friends groups while others have no group to advocate for their parks but are interested in starting one. Some park groups have a group and would like their group to be more active or have more support from the neighborhood. Nick Ellis (Dolores Park) and Mark Scheuer (Duboce Park) represent District 8 at PROSAC (Parks and Recreation Open Space Advisory Committee) and are interested in personally helping you create or sustain a group for your park. Each month they will offer one or two suggestions in this newsletter, based on their experiences as park advocates, that may help create or maintain a vibrant park group. Please contact Nick at njellis13@gmail.com or Mark at mark@friendsofdubocepark.org for further information.

Randall Museum Improvements

In the coming months the San Francisco Department of Recreation and Park Department will begin design for the renovation of the Randall Museum. In anticipation of project we are planning a series of information community meetings to explain the project to the immediate neighborhood as well as interested members of the greater San Francisco community. The first meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, October 9th, from 6:00pm to 7:30pm. The renovation project comprises new geology and zoology exhibits, a new science lab, a new elevator, as well as the renovation of the live animal exhibit, classroom, restrooms, first floor lobby, and concession area. Sustainable design techniques will be implemented as per the grant requirements. The planning phase will continue into December 2013, and the design phase will continue until the fall of 2014 with construction slated to begin in the spring of 2015. To learn more about the project and the schedule, you can contact Matt Jasmin from Rec and Park at matt.jasmin@sfgov.org or at (415) 581-2552.

Noe Courts Improvement Plan

Thanks to everyone who came out on September 7th for our third community meeting on the Noe Courts Park Improvement Plan. After receiving additional feedback from the neighborhood, our office will convene a fourth meeting to finalize the plan. I'm working with the Recreation and Park Department to set a date and time in early October, but in the meantime please reach out to Adam Taylor at adam.taylor@sfgov.org or (415) 554-6968 in my office for more information. Additionally, you can click the link below for more information, click here or contact project manager Marvin Yee at marvin.yee@sfgov.org or (415) 581-2541.

Glen Park BART Parking Fee

Starting September 30th, BART will be charging for parking at the Glen Park Station lot. The fee will be $2 per weekday for all parkers, including those with disabled parking placards. Parking on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays will still be free. The 5 hour parking time limit will remain in effect for all days, with no parking between 2 am and 4 am on all days.

Phone It In! City's New "StreetLightsSF" Phone App

The San Francisco Public Utilities Commission has unveiled a new smart phone application that allows cell phone users to report burned out and broken street lights anywhere in San Francisco from the convenience of their own phone. The new application, called StreetLightsSF, lets the user pinpoint the locations of faulty street lights by "dragging-and-dropping" a locating pin on a map and send the information to 311. The app also allows the user to track the status of repair efforts; and streamlines the process for reporting malfunctioning street lights to the agency that is responsible for their repair and maintenance (the majority of non-City-owned street lights are owned, maintained, and operated by PG&E). The StreetLightsSF application is compatible with iOS and Android smart phones and can be downloaded from the Apple and Android stores and also at sfwater.org (go to "Customer Service" and then select "Report a Problem").

New 311 App

311 has created a new app that makes it easier to report problems that need fixing on our city streets. You can use the app to report Abandoned Vehicles, Graffiti, Illegal Postings, Street or Sidewalk Cleaning, Streetlight Repair, Blocked Sidewalk or Space, Damaged Public Property, Litter Receptacle, Park Issue, Sign Repair, Street and Sidewalk Defect, and Tree Maintenance. You can also find out information about birth certificates, marriage licenses, tax registration, Healthy San Francisco, department hours/locations, city forms, and more. To find out more information or to download the new app, click here.

Community Spotlight: Richard Kravitz

This month at the Board of Supervisors, I honored Richard Kravitz who, along with his late husband Bill Montgomery, served SF Pride for years as contractors in charge of exhibitor relations. Richard is moving back to be with his family in Massachusetts, and he will be missed. Richard and Bill were true ambassadors to local, national and international sponsors for SF Pride.
